$60.00 / €55.00 / £50.00 cloth

A fresh interpretation of the contexts, meanings, and consequences of the revolutions of 1989, coupled with state of the art reassessment of the significance and consequences of the events associated with the demise of communist regimes. The book provides an analysis that takes into account the complexities of the Soviet bloc, the events’ impact upon Europe, and their re-interpretation within a larger global context. Departs from static ways of analysis (events and their significance) bringing forth approaches that deal with both pre–1989 developments and the 1989 context itself, while extensively discussing the ways of resituating 1989 in the larger context of the 20th century and of its lessons for the 21st. Emphasizes the possibility for re-thinking and re-visiting the filters and means that scholars use to interpret such turning point. The editors perceive the present project as a challenge to existing readings on the complex set of issues and topics presupposed by a re-evaluation of 1989 as a symbol of the change and transition from authoritarianism to democracy.

The analysis of the transition from socialism to capitalism under the eyes of the scholar whose Economics of Shortage (1980) made him the most influential critic of the political economy of socialism from within the Eastern bloc. Lucid and thought provoking with a great explanatory power regarding the future of economics, social sciences, and probably critical thinking as well, the eight essays in the book are connected by the community of four expressions that cover four phenomena of great and comprehensive importance: socialism, capitalism, democracy, and regime change.

CAPITALISM FROM OUTSIDE? ECONOMIC CULTURES IN EASTERN EUROPE AFTER 1989

Institute for Human Sciences, Vienna

320 pages, 8 tables, 2012
978-615-5211-33-1
$55.00 / €50.00 / £45.00 cloth

Studies by economists, historians, sociologists and anthropologists on transnational encounters in the economic cultures in post-communist Eastern Europe. It concentrates on smaller and bigger firms in the new market conditions, governmental bodies that shaped economic policies and regulations, and the academic settings of economic science. Comparative studies are offered in three areas: entrepreneurship, governance of economic change, and economic knowledge. Case studies analyze country specific issues.

The encounters between the economic actors of the "East" and the "West" – which have dramatically increased during the past two decades – are scrutinized. Chapters reveal how indigenous actors – workers, entrepreneurs, government officials, economists, think tank analysts etc. – in Eastern Europe, select (accept, adjust and mix) certain cultural packages while rejecting others. Although cultural exchanges are rarely symmetric, there is little to prove that "strong Western" culture devours (civilizes) the "weak Eastern" one, or "clashes of civilizations" drive capitalist transformations in the region.

ON THE EAST–WEST SLOPE
GLOBALIZATION, NATIONALISM, RACISM AND DISCOURSES ON EASTERN EUROPE
ATTILA MELEGH

A powerful analysis of the sociological and symbolic meanings of East/West in Europe after the end of the Cold War. While the fundamental poles of East and West remain, both their meaning and their relationship to one another have shifted profoundly since the late 1970s. Melegh exposes the underbelly of liberal characterizations of East/West, highlighting the polarizing effect of extreme nationalism and ethnic racism.

DIVIDE AND PACIFY
STRATEGIC SOCIAL POLICIES AND POLITICAL PROTESTS IN POST-COMMUNIST DEMOCRACIES
PIETER VANHUYSSE

Proposes a new explanation on why despite dramatic increases in poverty, unemployment, and social inequalities, transitions from communism to market democracy in the 1990s have been remarkably peaceful in Poland, Hungary and Czechia. It shows how reforming governments have been able to prevent massive waves of strikes and protests by the strategic use of welfare state programs such as pensions and unemployment benefits.

340 pages, 2012
978-615-5053-57-3
$55.00 / €50.00 / £45.00 cloth

Takes a comparative perspective on family life and childhood in the past half century in Russia and Eastern Europe, highlighting similarities and differences. Focuses on the problematic domains of the institutions and laws devised to cope with family difficulties, and discusses the social strains created by the transition from communist to post-communist national systems. In addition to the substantial historic analysis, actual challenges are also discussed.

The essays examine the changing gender roles, alterations in legal systems, the burdens faced by married and unmarried women who are mothers, the contrasts between government rhetoric and the implementation of policies toward marriage, children and parenthood.

By addressing the specifics of welfare politics under the Communist rule and the directions of their transformation in 1990–2000s, this book contributes to the understanding of social institutions and family policies in these countries and the problems of dealing with the socialist past that this region face.

BALKAN FAMILY STRUCTURE AND THE EUROPEAN PATTERN
DEMOGRAPHIC DEVELOPMENTS IN OTTOMAN BULGARIA

MARIYA N. Todorova

264 pages, 2006
978-963-7326-45-5 cloth $45.00 / €39.95 / £35.00

Reassesses the traditional stereotype of the place of the Balkans in the model of the European family in the 19th century on the basis of new source material and by synthesizing existing research. Analyzes family structure and demographic variables as they appear in population registers and other sources, and the impact of these findings on theoretical syntheses of the European family pattern. Contributes to the long-standing debate over the zadruga, the complex, collective, joint or extended family in the Balkans.

THE CHALLENGES OF SUSTAINED DEVELOPMENT
THE ROLE OF SOCIO-CULTURAL FACTORS IN EAST-CENTRAL EUROPE

FRANE ADAM

BORUT RONČEVIČ
MATEVŽ TOMŠIČ

246 pages, 2005
978-963-7326-00-4 paperback $27.95 / €24.95 / £22.95

How to narrow the gap between the old and new members of the European Union? Which socio-cultural aspects explain successful developmental performance? A vast amount of statistical data on social and economic factors in selected European countries is analyzed by such constructs as civilizational competence; social capital; quality of governance; entrepreneurial spirit; social cohesion etc.
Addresses the experience of Jesuit missionaries, teachers and writers along the peripheries of the Habsburg lands, which stretched to Moldavia, Ukraine, Serbia and Wallachia, and which were continually torn with ethnic tensions. The time scale of the study is from the "high tide" of the Society (often labeled "the first multinational corporation") in the fourth decade of the seventeenth century, until its suppression in 1773 by Pope Clement XIV.

The book examines several of the communities situated along the periphery and the records that they left behind about their interactions with the local populations. It constructs a vivid picture of Jesuit life on the frontier that is built up in mosaic fashion and livened by compelling anecdotes. The Jesuits of Royal Hungary exercised a baroque expression modeled after the larger western cities of the Habsburg lands, which was a fragile splendor in part defined by the need to defend Catholicism from the hostility of Orthodox, Lutherans, Calvinists, and others.
A non-conformist at the dawn of an epoch, a martyr of modernity, or just a polemic controvert? Giordano Bruno is known today as an exceptional, yet ambivalent figure within the history of ideas. As a great scholar, celebrated for his comprehensive erudition, famous for his emphatic defence of philosophical inquiry against religious doctrine and his rigid attacks against reputed authorities, he caused an intellectual sensation. He was burnt at the stake on the Campo dei Fiori in Rome, on February 17th, 1600.

Some of the world’s most eminent researchers on Bruno offer an exhaustive overview of the state-of-the-art research on his work, discussing Bruno’s methodological procedures, his epistemic and literary practices, his natural philosophy, or his role as theologian and metaphysic at the cutting-edge of their disciplines. Short texts by Bruno illustrate the reasoning of the contributions. The book also reflects aspects of Bruno’s reception in the past and today, inside and outside academia.

This small but rich book contains three lectures that explore some of the ways in which time matters or should matter to historians. How did Western Christian culture develop its distinctive way of measuring time (BC/AD or BCE/CE) and how does it influence our notion of history? Is modernity an experience of temporality or an ideological construction—a western, and therefore imperialist, imposition?

First volume of the Natalie Zemon Davis Annual Lecture Series

"Österberg makes her case well: ideas about friendship, love and sexuality are integral to society as a whole, they change over time, they are complex at any given time, and the most prominent of the chronological stories that can be traced is the emplacement of a distinct boundary between friendship and love. She concludes with an eloquent call to bring to bear the history of friendship on contemporary ideas about it. The nature of the book as lectures makes it a very quick and pleasurable read." – The Medieval Review

IN SEARCH OF “ARYAN BLOOD”

SEROLOGY IN INTERWAR AND NATIONAL SOCIALIST GERMANY

RACHEL E. BOAZ
Baldwin Wallace College, Berea, Ohio

256 pages, 2012
ISSN 2079-1119  This is fourth volume in the CEU Press Studies in the History of Medicine
978-963-9776-50-0
$50.00 / €45.00 / £40.00 cloth

Explores the course of development of German seroanthropology from its origins in World War I until the end of the Third Reich. Gives an all encompassing interpretation of how the discovery of blood groups in around 1900 galvanised not only old mythologies of blood and origin but also new developments in anthropology and eugenics in the 1920s and 1930s. Boaz portrays how the personal motivations of blood scientists influenced their professional research, ultimately demonstrating how conceptually indeterminate and politically volatile the science of race was under the Nazi regime.

Contrary to sustained efforts, the search for the “Aryan” blood did not materialize into the racial utopia that the Nazi officials had dreamed. Moreover, the monograph convincingly demonstrates how ambiguous the relationship between eugenics, seroanthropology and anti-Semitism was in Germany, not least because prominent German eugenicists and race scientists were Jewish or of Jewish origin.

BUILDING THE NEW MAN
EUGENICS, RACIAL SCIENCE AND GENETICS IN TWENTIETH-CENTURY ITALY
FRANCESCO CASSATA

408 pages, 2011
978-963-9776-43-8 cloth $55.00 / €45.00 / £40.00

Based on previously unexplored archival documentation, offers the first general overview of the history of Italian eugenics, ranging from the beginning of the 1900s to the first half of the 1970s. Discusses several fundamental themes of the comparative history of eugenics: the importance of the Latin eugenic model; the relationship between eugenics and fascism; the influence of Catholicism on the eugenic discourse and the complex links between genetics and eugenics. Analyses the nature-nurture debate in fascist Italy. Third volume of the CEU Press Studies in the History of Medicine.

THE SCIENCE OF THE SWASTIKA
BERNARD MEES

350 pages, 2008
978-963-9776-18-0 cloth $50.00 / €45.00 / £40.00

National socialist ideology is often dismissed as a random collection of conflicting ideas, but in fact it achieved among many a feeling of correctness and consistency, and was the result of serious-minded scholarship of Germanic antiquity. Mees focuses on the tradition of swastika studies, which featured a relatively long history, and not always at the fringes of the academe, the tradition of Völkisch Germanism, traditional links between history and intuition, and other ideographic studies that carried with them the aroma of service to the nation, such as those of eugenics, gothic art and even Sanskrit.

A QUALITATIVE COMPARATIVE ANALYSIS OF PATTERNS IN POST-COMMUNIST TRANSFORMATION

ZENONAS NORKUS
Vilnius University, Lithuania

A co-publication with Apostrofa, Vilnius
384 pages, 16 illustrations (charts, photo etc.), 2012
978-615-5053-50-4
$60.00 / €55.00 / £50.00 cloth

A unique application of social science software to generate typology and ranklist of transition models of twenty-nine countries in Europe and Asia, ranging from Estonia to Vietnam, Norkus provides a highly innovative internationally comparative causal analysis of the variation in political and economic outcomes after the first decade of post-communist transformations, using multi-value Qualitative Comparative Analysis and Tosmana programme.

The analysis includes a critical revision of received dichotomies (e.g. on gradualism versus “shock therapy”), and contributes to current debates on the varieties of post-communist capitalism. This conceptual framework is applied in national case studies, searching for reasons behind successes and failures, with special consideration given to the possibility of alternatives to the Lithuanian way, and the challenges of populism in this country’s politics.

Jānis Ezeriņš’s active literary life lasted only five to six years. For the twenty-first century reader his stories evoke the atmosphere of the post-war, newly independent, fairly multicultural Latvia, rural mysticism hued with the “fine neurosis” of the emerging modern era. Ezeriņš often blurs the boundaries between reality and fantasy, frequently making his reader laugh about the serious while aching when reading the humorous.

In each of its four sections the book includes papers that discuss various faces of educational policies aimed to promote equal education opportunity in different contexts. After a journey of comparative overview of research and evaluation projects on education inclusion covering fifteen post-communist countries in Europe and Central Asia, the second section treats aspects related to educational governance issues to promote inclusive education. The third part of the book addresses the challenges Roma students face in education, and the concluding chapter inquires about the link between resource allocations on propensities of educational inclusion.

ETHICS OF 21ST CENTURY MILITARY CONFLICT

256 pages, 2012
978-1-61770-041-5 paperback $24.95 / €23.50 / £22.99

Although the idea of ethical warfare may seem inherently paradoxical, efforts to justify the resort to war and to develop ethical constraints on uses of armed force are as old as war itself. This compendium explores some of the ethical challenges that arise in wartime, with a particular focus on contemporary warfare. Topics are wide-ranging, including concepts of just resort to war (jus ad bellum), just limitations on military actions during war (jus in bello), and the composition of the fighting army. Issues for debate: Is the only ethical perspective on war one that abandons it altogether? Or, given the seeming inevitability of war, should we take seriously the possibility that there are good and bad reasons to go to war? Are there better or worse actions to be pursued by those involved in military conflict? Should there be absolute limits on certain actions, or might any action be justified under extreme emergencies of war? Has the ‘war on terror’ raised unique challenges to our understanding of ethics in war?

When a country has a high proportion of its population in the young adult ages it is said to have a youth bulge. This can be a challenge because it can lead to conflict and violence or, depending on the size and trajectory of the bulge and on a society’s reaction to it, an opportunity. This anthology lays out the underlying framework of youth bulges and presents 12 influential articles that discuss the ways in which such a demographic phenomenon can work to the advantage or disadvantage of a society. Four thematic sections address: The Youth Bulge Emerges • Does the Youth Bulge Contribute to Conflict and Violence? • Is the Youth Bulge an Economic Burden or a Demographic Dividend? • How Does the Youth Bulge Operate as an Agent of Political Change?
